Bay council upholds apartment petition; 'aggrieved' to appeal R-2 to R-3 switch

Murtagh enters tax assessor-collector race

Edward D. (Eddie) Murtagh, Jr., 54, Chief Deputy Tax Collector for Hancock County, has announced his intention to run for the office of Hancock County Tax Collector Tax Assessor in the upcoming Special Election.

Murtagh, active in local civic and fraternal affairs for many years, is a life-long resident of Bay St. Louis, and a 1942 graduate of St. Stanislaus.

"I have seven years of experience as

Planning and Zoning Commission and permit spot zoning for the purpose of an apartment complex development between Keller and Sycamore Streets, will definitely be made, according to Joel Blass, Gulfport attorney, who on Tuesday represented a group of petitioners opposed to the development.

The action came at the conclusion of a lengthy public meeting called to hear argument for and against the proposal to change the existing R-2 zoning to R-3. Specifically the lots involved are 129, 72, 160, 130, 130, 131, 71, and the NW 1/2 of Lot 69, all in the Third Ward.

Blass said yesterday that a "Bill of Exceptions" will be filed with the court this month.

He said that under state law, the petitioners against the proposal, mostly consisting of adjacent property owners, have the absolute right to appeal.

Blass had previously informed council of the complainant's intent to appeal their decision. He said the developers had not shown any need for the apartment, a primary requirement for zoning changes.

In his closing argument, the Gulfport attorney, after confirming with council documentation and exhibits to be included in the hearing's record, agreed with his colleagues in the case, attorneys John Ellis and Henry Laird, Jr., that to grant the zoning change would be "procedurally incorrect."

James C. Thriffley, III, council president, who chaired the meeting, heard first from the developer, Milton Fortier, and his associates.

The developers said their research had shown a need for the type of unit they proposed, particularly by personnel at NASA-NSTL.

These people, they claimed, were not being attracted to Bay St. Louis due to a lack of proper housing. Further as they were being forced to rent in other areas, due to their being an insufficiency of suitable rental property in the city, they were buying in other areas.

The developers, after describing the existing housing surrounding the proposed complex as being sub- and below standard, told the complainants that as the area was now zoned R-2 they intended to build to R-2 specifications in the event they were denied the change.

"You're going to have it one way or another," the objectors were told. It was this, and another like remark, that led Blass to state during his closing argument that he had never seen such arrogance, and that he had been embarrassed by what he had heard.

The "defense" attorneys also said their clients were not objecting to the $1.5 million 43-unit apartment complex, only to its intended location.

"The city made a new (zoning) plan just a little over a year ago. The R-3 areas on that plan are not full up, and there is lots of room for this apartment to be built," they said.

Blass called on the city to display their contract showing what was being presented is what they were going to get, or their contract stating the developers will not sell the day after they get the new zoning.

Several people spoke in favor of the development, saying in the main that it would provide to a need now prevalent in the city, and would lend substance to the tax base.

Waveland Businessman Delmar Wilcox, who said he was not with any group, pointed out to all concerned that Bay St. Louis has no room to expand, being bordered on all sides either by water or the Waveland city limits.

"Bay St. Louis must add taxes to keep its momentum going."

"The way I see it you are worse off than Waveland as Bay St. Louis has no room to expand."

"Consequently you are going to have to have projects like this..." Wilcox allowed.

He said he was for any improvements in the Bay and that as a property owner in both municipalities and the county he paid taxes on all systems.

"Everytime something comes up it seems somebody complains," Wilcox said.

Others speaking for the apartment included Realtor Aimes Kergosien, who recently resigned from the planning and zoning commission.

Kergosien said the city possesses a definite need for housing and that he

Teacher collective bargaining spectre haunts city educators

By EDGAR PEREZ

Fearful of the spectre of collective bargaining, the Bay St. Louis Municipal Separate School Board this week reaffirmed its non-recognition policy against organized groups.

Primarily affected by the policy, originally adopted in June, are the Bay St. Louis Federation of Teachers, an AFL-CIO affiliate, and the Bay Council of the Mississippi Association of Educators, a National Education Association affiliate.

"The board is eliminating here any representative who might act as a collective bargaining agent," said board attorney Sam Favre.

"Yes, we are both looking for collective bargaining eventually for Mississippi, but we don't think about it as starting in the Bay St. Louis system," said Andrews Wilkinson, a Bay Junior High teacher and president of the BFT.

Bert Barrett, field representative for MAE, said some 74 of the teachers in the system hold membership in his organization.

Wilkinson said another 16 belong to the BFT as well as several who hold membership in both groups.

Superintendent J. D. McCulloch said there are a total of 96 teachers in the system, with some half-dozen unaffiliated with either group.

"We have two organizations in the system," said board member Walter Turcotte, adding, "We can't recognize one without the other, so for leaving the policy stand like it is for the time being."

"If we recognize two groups now, we

McCulloch, school board ink three year pact; one votes nay

By EDGAR PEREZ

The Bay St. Louis Municipal Separate School Board, by a four-to-one vote, this week approved a three-year contract renewal for Superintendent J. D. McCulloch.

The action followed an executive session requested by board member Walter Turcotte at the end of the board's regular meeting Monday night.

Approving a Turcotte motion to renew the superintendent's contract were Board President Virginia Gex and members W. E. Breland, Robert Hamilton, and Turcotte.

A Waveland board member Jean Turcotte voted against the contract renewal.

"I feel that since a one-year contract is what we grant to other administrators, it is only fair that we deal with the superintendent in the same way," Ms. Townsend said later.

"I am unalterably opposed to a three year contract," she added.

The superintendent's position currently carries a $25,000 annual salary, subject to yearly legislative adjustment.

McCulloch's previous contract covered a period of two years.

McCulloch said his 1974 contract was for one year, as was his original term in the position some 19 years ago.

Dupont clears hurdles, Save The Bay spiked

The Mississippi Air and Water Pollution Control Commission this week reaffirmed its waste water discharge permit granted to Dupont in 1975, adding five modifications requested by environmentalists opposing the permit.

Robert O. Homes, attorney for Save The Bay, Inc., said his group may appeal the commission decision, as well as a federal court ruling also issued last week which was a further setback for the environmentalists.

U.S. Magistrate John Roper dismissed the objections of Save The Bay to a U. S. Corps of Engineers permit for Dupont to construct a waste discharge line from its DeLisle plant into Bay St. Louis.

Homes had challenged issuance of the dredging and pipeline construction permit on grounds a proper environmental impact statement had not been obtained.

Roper ruled the study is not required for the permit which was originally issued also in 1975.

Homes said the commission permit modifications spelled out Tuesday "sound good," but added, "they never really went far enough."

1977 state farm review shows production up, farm $'s down

Value of farm production from Mississippi farms rose to a record level in 1977 for the second consecutive year. Unfortunately, production expenses also rose and prices for major commodities grown in Mississippi declined, resulting in an estimated 13 percent decrease in net farm income from 1976.

The value of farm production this year was estimated at $2,203 billion, up from $2,122 billion in 1976, according to a preliminary report released today by the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service at the annual III by '83 Progress and Outlook Conference, meeting at Mississippi State University.

Goal of III by '83 is a value of farm production of $3 billion by 1983.

While value of farm production was rising, soaring production expenses (up 8.1 percent in 1977) forced net income downward. The results: a net income of about $350 million in 1977. This compares to $402 million in 1976, and $621 million in 1973, the record net farm income year.

There's no doubt that this has been a very frustrating year for Mississippi farmers," said Dr. W. M. Bost, extension director.

"It is very disheartening for farmers to work hard all year to produce and market more products and still have less money in their pockets after paying their bills.

"Farmers faced drought, higher than normal insect outbreaks, higher prices for goods bought, and finally, lower selling prices this year," Dr. Bost added.

The weather warmed early in the Punishment given to motivate learning, teacher tells board

"One day another teacher told me she started giving licks to those in her class who failed," Ms. Woodall stated.

"We tell the children we are trying to motivate them to learn," she added.

She said several parents have

"I'm excited about what we are achieving," Ms. Woodall stated, adding, "I'm convinced without the motivation of licks we would not be making any progress."

"Most children do only what is required at home or at school," she

Opinion/Jake Jacob

Soon it will be Christmas Day

This time of year brings its own nostalgic memories that cannot be shared with any but the originator.

High on the list is a comparison of what events or circumstances were paramount last year, or the year before, or five, or ten or more years ago.

Christmas, unlike many events, cannot be duplicated, rerun, done over, or rescheduled.

The reason is that it is the magic of the "spirit of Christmas" more than the day itself that prevails upon all persons, rich or poor, young or old.

For one day a year, and particularly in the early morning, quiet hours of that day, normal life and thought is put aside to be replaced by the misty eyed something that forbids identification in anything more than general terms.

At that time peace comes to the soul, and memories of yesteryear replace the "nows" and tomorrows.

All too fast it is gone, and all too fast the realization of what was really present in each individual fades.

Probably the days leading to these moments, each bringing their increased exposure to twinkling lights, house and business decorations, and a tendency for people not to be quite as brisk to one another, have all served to pre-empt the mind of all but the acceptance of the hours of magic.

Perhaps the tears, so often produced by their arrival, though originating in many private, and very secret thoughts, and possibly the wish of what might have been had circumstance been different, serve to bring humility to the true or imagined great, and hope to the depressed.

The period immediately ahead is probably the most complete time of year for mankind.

Between now and the exchange of gifts, a custom begun centuries ago by men of wisdom, a willing acceptance of the "Christmas spirit" builds and builds until the tremendous personal emotional drop experienced on Dec. 26, when all of life's "trials and tribulations" once again loom supreme.

The moral perhaps is, to remember in those moments of personal reflection and "inward research" exactly whose birthday is being marked on Dec. 25. Having made this determination, recognition of the personal role played in the celebration of that birthday, no matter how small, is enough to bring joy to the soul.

Therefore, at this time, ten days from Christmas, let the "spirit of the season" begin to work within.

On Christmas Day, give pause to reflect on "the baby in the manger" and, carry that thought with you through next year.

Letters to the Editor

Thank you children

Sea Coast Echo

Dear Sir:

I want to thank the young children from North Bay School, and their teachers for bringing a joy of happiness to all of us that work at Hancock General Hospital and also the patients.

These young children sang their little hearts out with their beautiful Christmas carols, and we all enjoyed it so much, it really made our day much brighter and we just want to let these little children know how much we loved their Christmas carols.

We hope that Santa comes to see each and every one of them and that they will all have a Merry Christmas. We also hope that they will come back and sing to us again next Christmas.

Thank you little children,
Mrs. Barbara Black

On behalf of each of you, I am writing this special letter of thanks to Mr. Sonny Bailey of Bailey Electric Company in Bay St. Louis, for donating his time, effort, crew and equipment in hanging the Street Decorations for Christmas on Main Street.

Mr. Bailey has demonstrated through his efforts and actions, one of the true meanings of Christmas. He has given to all of us something on which we can place no monetary value.

Thank you Mr. Bailey on behalf of everyone in Bay St. Louis.

Murtagh...

Chief Deputy Tax Collector and feel that I am qualified to serve the people of Hancock County in this important office," said Murtagh. "The office of Tax Collector Tax Assessor is complex and demanding, and I have made it a point to devote all my energies to making myself more knowledgeable about the total operation of the office during the past seven years."

Murtagh is married to the former Beryl Bourgeois, and they have eight children: Mrs. Beth Goellner; Mrs. Sidnev Chevis; Mrs. Evelyn Yarborough; Mrs. Anne Meadows; Abbie, Theresa, David and Carrie are still at home.

An Air Corps veteran of World War II, Murtagh served in the South Pacific Theater of Operations, and was in the campaigns on Saipan, Iwo Jima and Okinawa. He holds an honorary Life Membership in the Clement R. Bon Temps American Legion Post 139 and served as Post Commander for three years and held the office of Adjutant for 12 years. He presently serves that organization as a Trustee.

He is a Past President of Our Lady of the Gulf Catholic Elementary School Board and was elected to the OLG Parish Council for four years. He is a member of the Knights of Columbus, and served as Grand Knight of that fraternal organization.

As Chief Deputy Tax Collector he has been responsible for the overall operation of the office, and the collection of Real and Personal property taxes; the automobile ad valorem taxes; and is for the fair and equal assessment of property.

McCulloch...

Other contracts held by the superintendent have covered periods of either three or four years, he said.

"And I've enjoyed it all," McCulloch said, adding, "Bay St. Louis is a fine place to raise a family and that's one of the main reasons I've stayed here."

McCulloch lives with his wife, the former Lucile Ladner, at 507 Highland Drive, Bay St. Louis.

The couple have two children, Mrs. Donald (JoAnn) Cuevas, also of Highland Drive, and Mrs. Cheryl Wanzky of Slidell, and two grandchildren.

Dupont...

Homes had asked the commission to revoke the permit altogether, but offered modifications as a stop-gap measure.

Dupont officials characterized the modifications as "clarifications," adding they generally are pleased with the ruling and do not anticipate too much difficulty in meeting the requirements of the modified permit.

Homes said he intends to call a press conference soon to publicize Save The Bay's desire to gather opinions from its supporters on future legal strategy.

The permit modifications adopted Tuesday originally came from the commission's technical staff after consultations with experts from both Save The Bay and Dupont.

They all deal with the company's proposed discharges into Bay St. Louis. There are no changes in the Dupont plans to pump other wastes into a 10,000-foot well.

The first modification more clearly prohibits Dupont from increasing the concentration levels of certain heavy metals already existing in the Bay, including iron, vanadium, chromium, lead, mercury, zinc, nickel, arsenic, cyanide and other solids.

Homes had argued that the present concentrations of those metals is below detectable levels, and there will be no way to determine increases until the levels become detectable and potentially harmful.

Another change requires Dupont to sample the concentration levels of its effluent as well as rainfall and water supply once a month, with results to be sent to the commission for analysis to determine any increases in concentration levels.

Homes claims that allowing Dupont to monitor itself constitutes a conflict of interest, and he has asked that Save The Bay or other outside interests monitor the effluents.

Another modification allows Dupont to discharge five milligrams per litre more iron than presently exists in rainfall and water supply if the iron is used as a settling agent to drag treated wastes to the bottom.

Dupont says it does not intend to use iron as a settling agent in its process. The commission also approved a modification placing a limitation on the amount of total suspended solids which Dupont may discharge in its effluent.

Dupont will be required to shut down its discharge into the Bay anytime low water surface comes to within 12 inches from the submerged mouth of the discharge line.

Dupont has planned a holding pond for times of significantly low water in the Bay, thus allowing the plant to continue operation with the discharge line closed down.

Homes had asked the company be required to extend the discharge pipe further south in the Bay to the confluence of the Wolf and Jordan Rivers, or into the Mississippi Sound.

The commission instead altered the permit by requiring the company to take monthly samples of sediments in and around the Bay and to report the findings to the commission every three months.

Farm review...

spring following a long, cold winter. Prices of both cotton and soybeans were good. Farmers were optimistic. Only the beef cattle price situation remained unsettled.

Farmers again planted a big cotton crop (about 1.5 million acres) and soybean acreage hit a record 3.95 million. Prospects looked good in other enterprise areas such as horticulture, forestry, catfish and poultry.

However, three major factors dampened the hopes of Mississippi farmers. First, a May-June drought seriously affected all enterprises, from delaying soybean plantings to reducing yields of grazing crops. Second, the commodity prices that looked so promising in the spring began to decline because of large acreages and prospects for bumper crops. And, third, insects moved in and forced farmers to spend extra production money to control them in soybeans, cotton, grazing and pasture crops, and some horticultural crops.

Most farmers, hoping for further price increases, failed to contract at the more favorable prices in the spring. In spite of increased soybean and cotton production, total income from all enterprises in 1977 was up only slightly.

Here's a brief look at how the major commodities fared in 1977, prepared by Bob Williams, extension agricultural economist.

Soybeans - State farmers averaged about 21 bushels per acre from the 3.85 million acres of harvested beans. Value of production was $453 million, down from $493 million in 1976 because of lower prices.

Weather was the biggest factor that kept yields low. Insect pressure was more widespread and longer lasting, causing growers to use more insecticides than normal and pushing production costs up. Prices tumbled from a high of about $10 per bushel in the spring to about $5 at harvest time.

Forestry - The value of 1977 forest products delivered to the first processor was $362 million, up from $329 million in 1976. Harvesting and will have to accept spin-offs from those two from time-to-time and we will wind up with 15," said board member Robert Hamilton.

Collective bargaining...

"I would like to reaffirm the policy as adopted in June," Hamilton added. The approved policy states: "We will not deal or bargain with any representatives of organized groups."

"What does deal mean," queried board member Jean Townsend.

Favre said "deal" as used in the policy statement means "negotiate."

Ms. Townsend raised the issue at last month's board meeting following receipt in September of an open letter to the board from Wilkinson requesting the policy be reconsidered.

Due to the absence of Hamilton, the reconsideration was tabled in November in keeping with a board tradition of not acting on policy matters unless all members are present.

Concerning adoption of the policy in June, Ms. Townsend said, "It seemed a proper decision at that time, but perhaps we should reconsider it now."

After board member W. E. Breland said he feels reconsideration of the policy "should come up with other policy decisions in April," Ms. Townsend said, "I can see no reason to hold off on it."

Also urging the board to reconsider its policy was Roger James, assistant principal at Bay Junior High and president of the local MAE council.

"I could come before you as an individual and say these same things, but not as a representative of other teachers," James said.

"It's obviously more efficient to deal with representatives," Wilkinson argued, adding, "the emotions boiling under the surface tonight are a good example of what you can expect dealing with individual teachers."

He was referring to a board meeting earlier in the evening with North Bay Elementary teachers on a corporal punishment issue.

Board president Virginia Gex joined Hamilton, Turcotte, and Breland in voting to retain the original policy.

Ms. Townsend registered a negative vote, thus standing in favor of recognition of groups.

In a statement issued later, Wilkinson said teachers prefer to deal or negotiate with the board directly by appearing as an organization on the agenda of the regular meetings.

"We sincerely regret that the school board has seen fit to refuse to hear the views of teachers through their duly elected representatives," the union leader stated.

"Our purpose is to improve the quality of education in the school district," Wilkinson continued, "and to improve the working conditions and benefits of the teachers."

"Having been denied the right to be represented directly to the school board, the BFT will attempt to achieve those same aims indirectly by the use of timely releases to the news media stating our recommendations for improvement," he concluded.

Building program

Also Monday, the board authorized Favre and McCulloch to take the necessary steps to secure through the Bay St. Louis City Council some $150,000 in local matching funds for a new cafeteria project at Bay Junior High.

McCulloch said a total of $109,830 has been pledged to the system by the State Educational Finance Commission for the cafeteria, renovation of the old cafeteria into classrooms, and renovation of the North Bay Elementary lunch room.

The state funds are contingent on the trustees' success in securing the necessary matching local funds.

McCulloch said the $150,000 can be financed through short term notes.

The superintendent said payments of $2,500 on Dec. 22 and $6,500 in May, 1978, will clear up the board's remaining short term indebtedness.

He noted the first payment on a new obligation would not fall due until one year after the money was received, "and we won't owe anything on short term notes by that time."

The City Council currently has one mill set for short term school indebtedness, the superintendent pointed out, with an additional half-mill needed to meet the projected $150,000 obligation.

He said a total of two mills is available for short term school indebtedness, subject to approval from the City Council.

Evaluation report

McCulloch read a letter from Joe E. Holloway of the University of Southern Mississippi-Gulf Park, consultant and visiting committee coordinator for the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools.

"The committee found no violation of accreditation standards and therefore cited no deficiencies. Several specific recommendations for further study were made," Holloway said.

The USM official, who headed a ten year interim visiting committee of the Southern Association which evaluated Bay Senior High, told McCulloch, "It is my opinion that you have an excellent program, staffed by capable administrators and teachers."

Members of the visiting committee were very complimentary of the school board and school district patrons for their efforts to provide a comprehensive senior high school program for the students served," Holloway reported.

In other action Monday, the board accepted the resignation of Ms. Dianne Clower, ninth grade social studies teacher. She was replaced by Michael Hamm who previously taught seventh grade English.

The board also approved the application of Ms. Patricia Claiborne. She will replace Hamm.

Mississippi consumer report

VERBAL PROMISES!

Do not rely on verbal promises or guarantees. Many consumer complaints arise from the fact that the customer has believed an oral statement made by a seller and later found that he had no proof that the statement was ever made. The seller may sometime deny that he ever made such promises or statements or he may have been fired by the owner of the business for such statements and left town. The customer without proof of oral promises would then be stuck without corroborating evidence.

TELEPHONE SALES

Hello-Goodbye
Telephone sales are familiar to all of us. Many of us have bought goods or services - magazines, kitchenware, children's photos - as a result of what began as a phone call from a salesperson. Often, however, the phone is a tool of the unscrupulous who wish to trick us into making a purchase, into allowing them into our homes for a sales pitch, or into contributing to a phony charity. Here are some tips for avoiding these hazards of over-the-phone sales solicitations:

1. Never agree either to buy a product, have someone come to your house, or make a charitable contribution during the first phone call. Tell the person you will call him back if you want the product or want someone to come to your home. If you are asked to make a charitable contribution, ask to be sent information about the charity. This will give you a chance to consider the product or charity.

2. If you are told by phone that you have won a prize in a contest or are offered a free gift:

-Find out the conditions for getting the prize or free gift. Often the prize is awarded for the gift is "free" only if you buy something, and often you will be overcharged for the item you are required to buy.

-Ask if you will have to listen to a sales pitch for a product or service. Oftentimes, to accept a "prize" or "gift" is to leave yourself open to an intense, high-pressure sales pitch.

3. If the company represents itself as helping the handicapped by selling a product:

-Ask for written information on how it aids the handicapped (how many handicapped it employs; how much money goes to the handicapped.)

-Compare the price of the product with the price for a comparable product sold in a store. If you find out that the company does help the handicapped, you might not mind overpaying for a product, but you should at least be aware of how much you are overpaying.

FIRE ON LOWER BAY ROAD last Sunday spread over an estimated three or four acres before being brought under control. Units from Clermont Harbor and Bayside Volunteer Fire Departments responded to call. Clyde Ladner of CHVFD said Tuesday the blaze threatened to envelope one house but was successfully diverted. He said the cause is still under investigation although strongest indication points to a lit cigarette discarded from a passing vehicle. (Staff photo - Randy Ponder)

Family Health gives 2nd year statistics

The beginning of the fifth year of Family Health Services, a private, non-profit, problem pregnancy clinic, in Jackson, was noted Nov. 5. During the first two years, the clinic's clientele has increased and services have been expanded.

Services now offered include: pregnancy testing, unplanned pregnancy counseling, first trimester abortion (up to 12 weeks), post abortion counseling, birth control information, second trimester abortion, referrals, referral information for pre-natal care or adoption, and speaker's bureau on birth control, abortion, rape, and human sexuality.

Family Health Services is still the only free standing abortion clinic in the state.

In the state of Mississippi in 1976, the State Health Department reports a total of 1,510 abortions performed. Of these, 1,050 were performed at Family Health Services; 673 of the women were white and 359 were non-white; 1,008 were married while 494 were unmarried. From Mississippi came 1,025 women, and 25 women from other states. Five hundred and nineteen were from the Greater Jackson Area, which includes Madison, Rankin, and Hinds. Fifty-five came from the eastern part of the state, 82 from the east, 29 from the northeast, 30 from the northwest, 55 from the southeastern part of the state, and the remainder from various other counties.

Jackson area residents can obtain further information from Family Health Services by calling 981-3010. Other residents of the state can call the toll free number, 1-800-682-5229 to get information.

explained, "When they finally realize the value of education, it is too late." "They just don't know the value of an education, and it is up to us—the parents and teachers—to get it across to them," Ms. Woodall feels.

She noted she has been teaching in the system for several years. "We believe we have a few answers about education, answers we've learned the hard way."

Ms. Woodall emphasized that she is a professional teacher. "I love children. I love teaching. I know that teaching is my calling."

"None of you can imagine what we who have been directly involved in this issue have gone through," she said of what was termed throughout the meeting as "adverse publicity" which followed a November school board meeting where parental charges were leveled against North Bay faculty.

Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Favre, parents of a 10-year-old student in Ms. Woodall's class, were represented at the November meeting by attorney Charles Sykes who demanded the ouster of Ms. Woodall and North Bay Principal Billy Sills.

"I made several attempts to contact Mrs. Favre, but she said they were going straight to the board," Ms. Woodall stated.

Ms. Woodall and attorney James Galloway of Gulfport, representing several North Bay teachers and the Mississippi Association of Educators, both urged the board in future to adhere strictly to the policy-stated chain of procedure for expression of grievances against a teacher.

"If you are going to insist that teachers follow your policies, teachers have a right to expect you to follow your policies," Galloway said.

Galloway said teachers were under the impression that complaints aired by Curtis Favre and other parents at the November school board meeting were to be heard in closed session.

Superintendent J. D. McCullough has said he advised teachers not to attend since he expected the parental grievances to be heard in executive session.

McCullough originally explained that board policy calls for parental grievances to be first taken up with the teacher concerned, then the principal. Settlement failure at these levels then results in hearings before the superintendent and board.

Principal Billy Sills of North Bay and Ms. Woodall said in the Favre case, there had been a breakdown in communications with the parents who presented their problems directly to the school board.

"Unfortunately, the grievances aired before you in November were not handled in that manner," Galloway said.

Favre's attorney had asked that the November meeting remain public.

"It's unfortunate the teachers were not present," Galloway said, "but they were advised not to attend that meeting."

"The teachers feel that publicity, both adverse and unwarranted, which they have received resulted from failure of the board to follow its own established procedures," Galloway stated.

"Teachers are very vulnerable, they stand in the public eye," the Gulfport attorney continued.

"If parents are entitled to come before the board and say this teacher does this to my child, and that teacher does not do that for my child, and it all is reported in the press," Galloway said, such policy leaves teachers particularly vulnerable.

"Parental grievances should be heard in private," the teachers' attorney urged.

"I'm not suggesting star-chamber proceedings," he added.

"But teachers would like to see some additional guidance from the board in the area of corporal punishment, particularly at this time in view of threats of suit from lawyers and parents," Galloway pleaded.

"Nobody likes to get sued," he said.

On discipline, Galloway said he feels teachers should be given wide latitude and discretion, with unusual cases being handled by the principals.

Board member William E. Breland said he favors academic corporal punishment if a letter from parents authorizing such punishment is on file in the principal's office.

Also at issue at the Monday night meeting was the question of variance by a teacher from materials prescribed by the state for particular courses.

"We would like some guidance from the board on whether or not a teacher is limited to state approved text books," Galloway said.

"For instance, how can you pursue a course in social studies without incorporating current events," the attorney ventured.

"Teachers do not believe effective teaching can take place with severely limited resources," Galloway added.

North Bay teacher Thaddeus Williams, accused at the November meeting of using "college level" words on spelling tests, said the prescribed text in his courses are easily mastered by the students.

"They refuse to take more tests on those words—these kids insist that I challenge them, so I'm going to challenge them," Williams explained.

"We would like for the teachers to go by the book, but certainly if children have mastered the prescribed text, it's time to go on to other material," said Ms. Jean Townsend, board member from Waveland.

She later offered a resolution which was accepted by the board altering the wording of an earlier report on the issue.

"Furthermore, teachers have been instructed to use textbooks approved by the State Department of Education in the teaching of spelling as well as all other classes," the original report stated.

Mrs. Townsend's resolution inserts the words "... textbooks as a basic guide."

Sills told the trustees teachers "... have lost respect and good standing in their communities through extreme adverse publicity."

He cited school board variance from stated policies as "extremely dangerous."

"Students' needs should determine the scope of our entire program," Sills said in a brief address urging the educators present "to get back to the job at hand which is teaching."

School board attorney Sam Favre said he feels the issue is the result of "a breakdown in communications," as he urged, "Let's sit down and work it out."

Breland noted he appreciated seeing both teachers and parents together at the meeting.

Also addressing the board were two representatives of North Bay parents, Albert Fairconnetue and Percy A. McKay.

"I hope we can go home with an open mind to peacefully work this out for the betterment of our children," Fairconnetue pleaded.

McKay urged parents to settle their differences with teachers and principal at North Bay.

"I trust these teachers," McKay said, adding, "I'm not saying I won't question the teacher and principal face to face if my daughter comes home complaining of mistreatment."

"How can we let one child disrupt a whole school," McKay questioned.

Sea Grant leader cautions county on commercialism

by JAKE JACOB

Commercial development of Hancock County's estuarine areas must be weighed in the light of their value to local sports and commercial fishermen, and their relation to nature's food chain, according to Dr. David Veal, leader, Sea Grant Advisory Service, Biloxi.

Veal said the typical Gulf Coast estuary is the drowned river valley, separated from the sea by barrier beaches and embayments that receive only fresh water runoff.

"Because the Gulf Coast population is growing so quickly there is more commercial development."

"This is a big threat to production from fishery resources," he explained. He said the Gulf of Mexico is the leading U.S. fishery region boasting 30 percent of the nation's catch, adding, "Of that amount, 60 percent are fish that depend on estuaries for at least part of their life cycle."

About 20 percent of the U.S. marine recreational catch occurs in the Gulf and of these, 70 percent are estuarine dependent.

Veal said that many estuaries have been destroyed or altered, and that dredging and filling have wiped out thousands of estuarine areas, while domestic and industrial wastes have disposed of thousands of others.

"If this continues fishery resources production will suffer as the marshes and other estuarine areas provide nursery and feeding grounds for species vital to fishing industries."

"Many marshlands and their plants have been ruined."

Marshes provide the source of food to tiny life forms, which in turn feed the larger creatures.

"Marshes also filter land runoff and tidal waters, making safe nursery grounds for economically important fish and shellfish."

He said the losses caused by pollution amount to some 16 percent per year, a dangerous figure.

Veal indicated that Hancock County, like other coastal areas, should give grave consideration to any coastal development, carefully weighing its impact on wetlands destruction.

"The proposed development's value must be measured against the permanent losses of our estuarine resources."

"This seems like the only way we can save them," Veal concluded.

could see no detrimental affect being brought about by the proposal.

He compared it to the Louisville Garden Apartments, which he said is a bigger complex than the one proposed, and one that has not posed traffic or pedestrian problems outlined as possible hazards by the objectors.

Another reminded council that the area concerned contained decayed sheds in which small children played daily at considerable risk of injury from falling debris and falling structure but nobody seemed to think enough about that situation to complain.

A contention that only New Orleans "weekenders" were complaining was somewhat dispelled when a show of hands revealed only one family and the developer could fall into that category, the balance of the council chamber, proponents and opponents (other than attorneys, architects and the like), being residents of the city.

A note of caution to all the proceedings was introduced by Peggy Gibbens who read a letter from the state department of archives expressing concern lest the intended apartment replace some buildings currently scheduled for survey and possible inclusion in the national register.

The letter was introduced into the record.

CHRISTMAS PARTY
All Senior Citizens of Hancock County, 60 years of age and over, from the Center and the Senior Citizens Clubs from Pearllington, Kiln, Waveland, Bay St. Louis, and all parts of Hancock County, are cordially invited to attend the Senior Citizens Christmas Party, 1 p.m., Monday, Dec. 19, Bay St. Louis. It is the last event of the year for all Seniors. We promise to make it a good one.

Our good friend Louis-Burghard, pianist, who has entertained us at the center throughout the year and has come to our rescue on many occasions, will entertain us, along with your truly leading the seniors singing Christmas Carols, along with a few surprises. Santa Claus will be there to greet every one.

There will be three door prizes given away at the Christmas party, a gift donated by Mayor Bennett of Bay St. Louis and Mrs. Bennett, a Ceramic Christmas tree donated by Mrs. Rose Everard, co-instructor of our Ceramic class, and a Christmas tree donated by Colonel DeBuys, owner of Santa's Forest.

Refreshments will consist of Red Velvet cake, Fruit Cake, coffee and egg nog.

RECREATION
The combination Game session and birthday party was attended by 110 Seniors who had an enjoyable afternoon. It was the last game session of the year. Winners were Anna Marsh, Eugenia Benoit, Fred Horn, Les Gallivan, Ellen Peterson, Aline Coyne, Archie Diebold, Lucy Guagliardo, Ida Carter, Mildred Bobinger and Ethel Domaip. Winners of the door prizes were Mrs. Gertrude Phaup, Blanche Collins and Rev. Hall.

We thank all the merchants and friends in Bay St. Louis and Waveland for their interest, particularly: Pere Cabibi, Irma Cuevas, Ceramic Class, Ladners Sea Food Market, Waveland Lumber and Bro Hardware, Jerome's Clothing, Seymour's Jewelry, Frost Top Restaurant, Eckers, Sea Coast Echo, George's clothing in Waveland, Western Sizzlin Steak House, Gulfport; Food Discount Center, Bay St. Louis; Mayor Longo of Waveland and Mrs. Longo, and Colonel DeBuys of Santa's Forest.

From month to month we list the names of the merchants and other persons who have helped us this year. It would be a grand gesture for all Seniors to patronize the merchants who help in our Center.

Seniors who celebrated birthdays in December were Otto Sulzer, Agnes Leroy, Cecile Galivan, Margaret May, Edith Chevis, Louise Banks, Paul Lewis, Josea Urbino, Harriet Jordan, Eugenia Benoit, Mildred Bobinger, Ita Strohmeier, Eulyssee Cain, Ida Carter, Feleanese Thomas and Anita Cohen. All present at the birthday party joined in singing. We wish all of them happiness and good health. Winner of the special birthday prize donated by Danny's Fried Chicken Restaurant, two chicken dinners was and Eve, a conflict between Feleanese Thomas. A special thank you to all the R.S.V.P. Volunteers who made our game session and birthday party successful.

I apologize to the volunteers for misplacing the list with the names of the volunteers who baked the cakes and who helped serve the refreshments. I will list their names in next week's column.

We particularly thank the telephone committee: Jewell Stratton, Cecile Galivan, Catherine Galivan, Marie Longo, Mrs. Watkins, Bernice Scaffidi, Eva Ruhr, Helen Cuevas and Nina Garner; Archie Diebold for his work. Archie was assisted by John Galivan, Roland Galivan, Joe Roppolo and Hugh Miller, who set up the public address system - and controlled our audio.

The Seniors were entertained by a very talented group of teenagers from 13 to 16 years of age last Wednesday at the Senior Citizens Center. All student are at the Coast Episcopal High School in Pass Christian.

Norman Maxwell, a graduate from Scarrett College in Nashville, Tennessee who teaches Drama and English at the High School, initiated the idea for forming a drama club, with the cooperation of Sharon Wilcox, musical director for the club, a graduate of the Oral Roberts University, who teaches piano and many other musical instruments, also teaches voice and directs the choir at the school. The play they presented was written by Mark Twain, a satire on Adam and Eve, a conflict between man and woman. Norman Maxwell, who directed the play, conceived the idea to make it into a Musical Satire. Congratulations Norman, you did a wonderful job. These teenagers performed without any inhibitions, they showed no traits of under or over acting. Their delivery, expressions, gestures and articulation were natural, the satirical lyrics were delivered with finesse. Yours truly, a former entertainer, congratulates Norman Maxwell, Sharon Wilcox and the cast as follows:

Adam - Donald Scarborough;
Eve - Annette Rand;
Snake - Sam Furr.
Congratulations are in order to Cherie Arceneaux, who teaches water color and sketching at the Senior Citizens Center. She did an excellent job in the Arts and Decoration Department, as did the rest of the teenagers who helped make the sets and do the work behind the scenes.

Norman Maxwell and his students have presented the musical satire on Adam and Eve many times without any remuneration. The Seniors who witnessed the performance greeted the players with laughter and rounds of applause throughout the entire performance.

All of us at the Center enjoyed every moment of the play.

WAVELAND
The Waveland Senior Citizens Club dedicated the renovated auditorium of the new Waveland Civic Center Monday with a Christmas Party, that was a doozer!

President Ruby Life and the members are to be congratulated in decorating the rooms, providing the refreshments and games, and all around entertainment throughout the party.

Congratulations are also in order to Herman Yarbrough and his maintenance men for the wonderful job they did in renovating the auditorium and the rest of the center.

Barbara Rappold, city clerk for Waveland, extended best wishes for a happy holiday season to the Senior Citizens Club from the City of Waveland, and the club in turn presented Barbara with a gift.

BEREAVEMENT
Our condolences are extended to our good friend Evelyn Gourley, on the death of her mother, who died as the result of an automobile accident.

BEVY OF BEAUTY gave problems to judges asked to render decision at Gulfview PTO's Christmas Fashion Show on Monday in the school's cafeteria. Ravishing qualities of four finalists turned (away) many a head and made final assessments difficult. Contestants were rated on poise, figure, charm, beauty, and stuff like that. After first round of judging charts of the three judges read: 0-0-0-0-0-0, 0-0-0-0-0-0, 1-0-0-0-0-0, respectively. Final categorization and diploma awards were, from left: Miss Best Figure (or close), Ms. Christian Neubig; Miss Gulfview of 1977 (and years 1923, 1936, 1944, 1951), Ms. David Smith; Miss Sexy of Lakeshore (including Ansley, some of Clermont, the area around Ladner's Friendly Inn, and Port Bienville), Ms. Harlan Hill; Miss Gorgeous Wiggle (and waggle), Ms. Duke Duplantis. Free glaucoma test set by county health unit

The Hancock County Health Department is now providing a screening program for glaucoma for those persons 65 years of age or older. Next test date at the center is 8:30 to 10 a.m., Friday, Dec. 16.

Glaucoma is the leading cause of preventable blindness. This condition, which involves increased pressure within the eyeball, will gradually destroy the nerve fibers in the eyes, causing total blindness.

Signs and symptoms suggesting Chronic Glaucoma include:

- Frequent changes of glasses, none of which is satisfactory.
- Inability to adjust the eyes to darkened rooms, such as theatres.
- Loss of side vision.

- Blurred or foggy vision.
- Rainbow-colored rings around lights.
- Difficulty in focusing on close work.

Some points to remember about glaucoma are:

- 1) Is found primarily in people over 35 years of age.
- 2) Exists for quite some time without symptoms.
- 3) Can be controlled with proper treatment.
- 4) Is controlled easier when detected in early stages.

"It occurs more often in families of people with this disease."

The old log house - by S. Grady Thigpen - gone as an era ended county historian

The picture we see of log homes give us a false impression. Most old pictures were made only of the best home. Just like, if a person goes to have his own picture made, he dresses up and looks his best, not to give a true impression, but to give a good one.

The common house, the old time log house, the type of house that at least 95 percent of the people lived in 100 years ago, was generally not considered sufficiently attractive to have its picture made. For that reason, we have very few pictures of the type houses that most of our grandparents lived in. According to my information, every house in this general area, with the possible exception of just one or two, was a log house 100 years ago.

We are inclined to speak slightly of log houses as something inferior, but many of the old time log houses were well constructed. It required great skill to build a good one.

The better of the old time log houses were strongly and substantially built. One of my grandfathers lived in an old, what was called a double pen log house. This type house was called that because two separate log rooms were built near each other, and then both of these rooms, with the intervening space, was all covered with one roof.

The foundation blocks, under my grandparents' old house, were cut from big heart pine logs, and were stood on end in holes dug down to the clay. They extended above the ground level about 30" or sometimes more. Most of the old time houses stood well above the ground. It seems, that old time people must have known that houses well above the ground with plenty of air and light under them would be little damaged from wood lice - now called termites.

The sills under the old log house my grandparents lived in were hewn from heart pine logs, and were notched together at the corners so securely that they were about as strong as if they had grown together. The sills were about 10 x 12 in size.

In the building, of this old log house, two large rooms - they must have been about 18 feet square - were built about 14 feet apart. Each room was walled up on all 4 sides with logs. Two spaces were left in each room, one on each side of the fireplace, for windows. One space was left in each room for a door, the doors to the 2 rooms facing each other across the 14 foot space between, which was to serve as a hall.

The peeled logs used in the construction of this old house were almost exactly the same size and almost perfectly straight. They were securely notched together at the corners by expert carpenters, making an almost indestructible building unit.

The roof was framed over the two big log rooms and the space between them, making the roof with the overhang at each end, about 54 feet wide. The rafters, made of smaller peeled pine poles, were trimmed and matched so as to be even all the way across the roof, and were about 22 feet long so as to extend out enough to cover a porch or side room. The overhang of the roof, front and rear, over the log rooms extended out enough to leave about eight feet all the way across both front and rear. On the front of the house, this space was used for 18 feet as a side room, and the other 32 feet was left open for a front porch. On the back of the house, this extension covered a side bedroom on one side, and a dining room on the other side of the hall, which extended all the way through the center of the house.

tended all the way through the center of the house.

The floor joists in this old house were also made of peeled pine poles and extended from sill to sill. They were expertly fitted to make an even floor. The floor itself was made from wide heart pine boards about one inch thick, which had been hand planed. Every board ran the full length of the room - no joints. The overhead ceiling throughout the house and the siding on the shed rooms were made from the same kind of wide boards, but were left rough. The ceiling was attached to ceiling joists, also made from pine poles. This lumber was so thoroughly dried that there was a minimum of cracks in the ceilings, walls and floors.

When this old house was first erected, wood pegs had been used instead of nails, as nails were hard to get back in those days.

As was the general practice, a log kitchen about 12 x 20 feet stood about 30 to 40 feet behind the house with a covered walkway from the back hall of the house to it. When I can first remember, there was a cast iron cook stove in the kitchen, but also there was a good sized open fireplace, fitted up for cooking over the open fire as in the days of old. A log smokehouse stood near the kitchen.

Building back then, because of the great amount of labor involved, was a big undertaking. The kitchen was placed away from the house for fire protection, as there was no such thing as fire insurance. If a home burned, it was a total loss, so every precaution was taken to avoid fires. Most of the old time families always left someone at home to protect against fires as well as from thieves. I grew up in a thickly settled country community. In all that section, for miles around, I never knew of a single fire that destroyed a home.

Having no insurance, people watched their homes closely. Originally, shutters had been installed for windows in the old log house, but when I first remember glass windows had been put in; however the shutters were left for protection against hail and wind. The doors were made from the same kind of lumber as the floors and ceiling.

Pine laths, or planks - I think they must have been about four to six inches wide - were nailed to the rafters at the right distance apart to apply a board roof. To get the roof boards for an old time board roof, straight grained pine trees would be selected. The tree would be cut into blocks about 20 inches long - this length varied on different roofs - and then split up into bolts. A Froe and maul would be used to rive out the boards about one half inch thick. I knew of one old house where it was said that the old heart pine board roof was 50 years old and still giving good protection to the house. When I was a boy, we used board roofs altogether to cover houses, barns and sheds. I myself have used a Froe and maul to split out shingles - boards, we called them.

The steps for the front and rear of this old house were made of heart pine logs. I am well qualified to talk about this old house for as a child I played all over it, all under it and all in it.

The fireplaces and chimneys were framed up with narrow pieces of lumber and then heavily plastered with clay mortar intermixed with a fibrous binder, usually straw of some kind. There were two fireplaces, one in each big room. The fireplace in the room where my grandparents stayed was fitted with bar and hooks to hold vessels to heat water and do certain kinds of cooking. I have often seen potatoes baked in the hot ashes.

The old open fireplaces in my grandfather's house were wide and it seems to me, looking back, about four feet high. A good sized log, called the back log, was always burning in cold weather, while smaller wood and kindling were thrown on to keep it burning. A roaring fire was kept in this old fireplace all winter. At night live coals would be banked - that is covered with ashes. Early next morning the ashes would be cleared off, kindling put on, and soon a good fire would be going. Only one of the fireplaces was regularly used; the one in the front room, or parlor, was used only on special occasions. It required a long time and labor to keep wood for more than one big fire.

People got plenty of fresh air back then as the suction from the fireplace kept a constant stream of fresh air pouring into the room.

Because of this abundance of fresh air people did not have so many colds or other diseases as they do now, closed up in heated rooms. In cold weather, the members of the family would run from the fire, jump in bed and under the covers at night. They would jump out of bed, in freezing weather, and race for the big open fire in the early morning.

The blazing fire in this old time fireplace provided most of the light in this old home in winter. I myself, have studied my lessons many a night by the firelight from an open fireplace. In the summer, very little light was needed, as people generally went to bed and got up early.

The spaces between the log, in this old time home, were filled with clay mortar mixed with a fibrous material. Then a thin pine board would be nailed over this mortar to the logs. Finished in this way, the walls made a neat appearance.

Old time log houses, so common 100 years ago, have gone the way of so many other old time things.

Overloaded Outlets Are Common 'Hot Spots'

Overloading electrical outlets is a common household practice, particularly at Christmas time, when traditional decorations call for lots of extra lights. Fire safety professionals warn, however, that overloading circuits, even for a short time, is a real fire hazard - "hot spot."

"You should remove the extra plugs and put them in another outlet," advises an educational package on fire safety produced and made available nationally as a public service by Burger King Corporation.

The tip is one of many on household "hot spots" and on home fire safety practices that appear in "You're Big Enough for Fire Safety." This teaching unit, targeted to elementary school age children, contains eight duplicated masters, flash cards, a board game and a teacher's guide. It can be obtained by sending a check or money order in the amount of $2.00 to: "You're Big Enough for Fire Safety," Burger King Corporation, G.P.O. Box 1472, New York, New York 10001.

Coast clinic to hear Coach Johnny Majors

Head Coach Johnny Majors of the 1976 NCAA Coach of the Year and currently head mentor at Tennessee, is the featured lecturer for the 15th Annual Gulf Coast Coaches' Clinic on Friday and Saturday, Jan. 20-21.

Majors, who guided the University of Pittsburgh to a 33-13 record from 1973-76 before taking over at his alma mater in 1977, is joined by a cast of excellent high school coach-clinicians.

Among the respected members of the coaching profession on the docket are Al Rinalo of Highland Springs (Va.) High School, Sonny Jackson of Baton Rouge (La.) Central High, Robert Shaw of Mobile Murphy (Ala.) High, and J.E. Loiacano of Gulfport High School.

Best remembered for his 1976 national championship team at Pitt which finished 12-0 and downed Georgia 27-3 in the 1977 Sugar Bowl, Majors is regarded as one of the outstanding technicians of the collegiate arena.

Rinalo, who has logged a 165-50-13 record for 23 years at Highland Springs HS, has tutored six undefeated teams and has been selected state "High School Coach of the Year" twice in the Commonwealth State.

One of the top coaches in Louisiana, Jackson has led his last four teams into the postseason playoffs and has produced five winning teams in succession at Central High. Shaw took Murphy into both the 1976 and 1977 Class AAAA playoffs in Alabama circles, and his 1976 team finished second behind Mountain Brook High School All-Star Game.

After starring at Mississippi State and playing professional football with the San Francisco 49ers, Loiacano has been successful in the high school ranks. His last three teams at Gulfport East and Gulfport High have gone 26-6, and he was head coach of the victorious South Squad in the 1977 Mississippi High School All-Star Game.

Reservations for the annual clinic are already being taken at the comfortable Sheraton Biloxi Motor Hotel, and applications can be obtained by writing: Lindy Callahan, Gulf Coast Coaching Clinic, 206 Locust St., Gulfport, Miss., 39501.

Gulf Pines Girl Scouts embark on 'cookie trail'

By GWEN GOLLOTTE
Gulf Pine Girl Scout Council

Chairmen for the annual Gulf Pines Girl Scout Council Cookie Sale for 1978 were honored with a luncheon on Dec. 8 by Interbake Foods, Inc. at Mary Mahoney's Old French House Restaurant in Biloxi, hosted by George Barron, sales representative, Interbake Foods.

The luncheon followed a morning training program for the Cookie Chairman and other Council representatives at which time supplies and schedules were distributed.

Barron announced the addition of a new flavor for 1978, Snow Drops, and told the cookie leaders that Gulf Pines Council troops received more income back from the Council for their troops use than any other Council in the Region.

He noted that troops in this Council keep 20 cents per package for the first 59 cartons sold, and 25 cents for all over 60 cartons, to assist with troops needs and special events; the remainder, he added was responsible for the continued maintenance and development of Camp Iti Kana. The Girls Scouts of this Council are able to see where all the funds from the cookie sale are spent, and feel the importance of their sales efforts, he stated.

The schedule, reviewed by Mrs. Kitty Reid, Assistant Executive Director of Gulf Pines Council, covers a three-month period including training of girls, Jan. 3-12; taking orders Jan. 13-21st; delivery, Feb. 14 - March 11, and final reports from neighborhoods to the Council office on March 17th.

Harvill outdoors

By Donald Harvill

There are still a few specks out-front and in the lower reaches of our local rivers and bayous, but other than that, the salt water fishing is about done for in our local waters.

The best fishing now is the fresh water fishing, bass, bream, and white perch (Crappie) are being caught with enough regularity to warrant a fishing trip. The water in most of our local rivers and bayous is presently muddy, but fish are still being caught.

Most of the hunting seasons are presently open, so the hunter shouldn't have too much trouble keeping himself occupied. Some of the seasons that are presently open are rail, snipe, duck, quail, squirrel, woodcock and the primitive arms season for deer.

There are quite a few beagle buffs in this area, who really enjoy busting the little bushy-tailed bunnies. Some hunters around won't hunt anything but rabbits, some are so addicted they would even pass up a shot at a deer for a bunny. I can't say that I would go that far, but I have to agree that a day with a good brace of beagles in quest of the elusive cottontail can be one of life's great pleasures.

One of the finest game birds around has to be the timber-doodle (woodcock). Now you might think that a bird that goes around poking its nose in the mud after worms can't be much, but I can assure you that they are one of the hardest to hit and certainly one of the best eating. Woodcock are sometimes taken over a bird dog while after quail, but most bird dogs won't retrieve one. The reason being their strong aroma.

A party of local sportsmen recently made a tremendous hunting trip to Texas. The party consisted of eleven hunters all totaled. There were four from Bay St. Louis, John D. Rutherford, Jr., Dr. J.D. Rutherford, III, Russell Elliott, Duke Elliott, and Lucien Kidd; the rest of the party were from Gulfport.

The hunt was made on the Thompson Ranch, more than 1000 acres of fully country with a creek running through the middle. The ranch is located about 75 miles Northwest of San Antonio, is held in lease by a group from Gulfport.

The hunters stayed in a brick ranch house that was built around the turn-of-the-century, and they had to use an outdoor john.

According to John Rutherford the area has a great abundance of deer, wild turkeys, rabbits and squirrels. Also in Texas you are allowed two bucks and a doe along with two wild turkeys. Dr. Rutherford bagged two bucks and a doe, as did Kidd, Russell Elliott bagged two bucks and John Rutherford collected two bucks, a doe and two wild turkeys. Incidentally, Rutherford's two turkeys were the only ones taken on the hunt. Although the group of 11 took down four deer, fifteen bucks and one doe, Rutherford said the deer were rather small, running from about 75 to 100 lbs., but they made up in antlers what they lacked in body.

KILN: There has been a little fishing going on. Elexis Hanes caught 17 white perch Tuesday and 14 on Wednesday. A few green trout are being caught in the Jourdan River, a few specks are being caught at the mouth of the river on trolled artificials. The tide is low during the day, the river is real good and cool. Keven Hass has been killing a few rabbits. (Andy Ladner, Andy's Baitshop, at Kiln Supermarket)

PEARLINGTON: The water in the Pearl River is kind of muddy. Jack Patterson and Bernie Donlon both caught their limit of 15 nice bass per person in Honey Island Swamp. They said they were using crank baits but wouldn't say which one. In particular, they also said that the water was kind of muddy where they caught them. (Roy Baxter, Pearl River Marina.)

Joe's Bayou: There hasn't been much fishing because of the low tides, high winds, and cold weather. A few people did go fishing and they caught a few specks. The trolling is good in the river. We have frozen bait. (Mrs. Allie Cospelich, Joe's Bayou Marina.)

BAY ST. LOUIS: There has been no fishing news. A few people did go to the marshes, but they didn't catch anything. There has also been no hunting news. We've sold some duck stamps this week but haven't heard the hunting results. (Ed Symmes, Sportsman's Paradise.)

BAYOU CADDY: There has been no fishing because of the weather. I think that a few fish are still around but no one is willing to go out after them. We do have some live bait left for those who are interested. (Wilford Bordages, Bordages Bros. Marina) d'Iberville dominates Rocks

Monday night in the old SSC gym the d'Iberville Warriors defeated the St. Stanislaus Rock-A-Chaws 69-50.

St. Stanislaus high scorers were Charlie Vincent, 18, and Kerry Corr, 16.

d'Iberville's Danny Dunlop was the game's leading scorer with 23. Warriors were on top of the Rocks at the end of each quarter of the game.

JUMP BALL - After tying up the ball on the floor, Kenny Blakes, 13, of St. Stanislaus and Blaine Thomas, 20 of Bay High Tigers sees who can out jump the other as the referee throws the ball up. The Tigers spoiled the opening game of the Rock-A-Chaws in their new gym by a score of 89-59. This evens the score at one victory each for the Tigers and Rocks this season. Stanislaus won an earlier encounter at the Pass Christian Round Robin Tournament

Average U.S. Home May Soon Cost $78,000

The average price of a typical American home could reach the almost incredible level of $78,000 within five years. This startling information was released in early March 1977 in a report by the Joint Center for Urban Studies of Harvard University and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. The price of housing in the past few years has jumped twice as fast as family incomes. Contributing to this as family incomes. Contributing to this rapid rise in the price have been inflation, government regulations, and periodic shortages of mortgage money — all of which has caused a sharp decline in housing starts since 1972.

Buccaneer Crew Notes

by DIDDY QUINLAN

So many of our campers are refugees from the northern winters, that I hate to see these cold spells last too long. But they don't seem to mind. I guess this isn't too cold, when it is compared to what they're used to. "Thanks be to God for the bit we have!"

Diamondhead's parade of lights awards given

The overall first place trophy in the Diamondhead Parade of Lights boat decoration competition Saturday went to the Sun Time, a 37-foot sailboat owned by Bill Ferguson of New Orleans.

In the sailboat category, Ed Snow of Diamondhead took first place with his boat, The Snowman.

The M.V. Tarpon took first place honors in the over-30-foot category for power boats. She is owned by J.C. Koenen of Kilm.

Dr. Robert Ersek of Diamondhead, owner of the Playpen, took the honors in the under-30-foot class of powerboat.

Sams. What a group! They danced, sang, played cards, enjoyed a pot luck supper and had a great time. Organized camping groups always seem to live their leisure to the fullest.

Last week's exercise class was a doozy!! We warm-up, walk a mile and then do some slow exercises. The mile walk is around the loops in the campground and then back to the recreation hall. It's a lot of fun, so come on and try it with us.

The basketry class also started last week. Ms. Smith, our instructor, listed needed materials as 12-20 feet of rope (like cotton clothesline); two skeins of rug yarn; and a tapestry needle. These are called baskets, of the "Indian snake charmer" type, done in a small class with a lot of individual instruction. Ms. Smith assures us that these projects can be completed as Christmas gifts.

And next week's movie will be the "Treasures of Tutankhamen" - a slide presentation on the exhibit now showing in New Orleans. This is a free showing for those who cannot make it to the city.

And don't forget our hobby horticulture class - which will be this Friday and on alternate Fridays thereafter. Last week members collected materials for a Christmas wreath, and this week's project is another Christmas decoration.

Christmas games for kids are planned for this weekend.
